GARDENS OF YESTERYEAR TOUR

Join us on a virtual tour, via slideshow program, of some of the finest summer estate gardens of the North Country, circa 1933.

This show features hand-painted slides highlighting the gardens of some of the members of the White Mountain Garden Club at that time. Put together by original owner Mrs. J.G. Glessner, the presentation also includes a narrated reading of letters written by the ladies of the Club. These letters portray not only the gardens, but also the social climate of that era. The elegant style of writing is a joy to listen to.

All combine to create a truly incredible journey into the past, to an era when gardens were the treasured escapes of their owners. Contact with nature was considered beneficial for everyone and making a garden was a socially valuable act, if not actually a public duty. Women even became landscape architects and writers of garden books without risk of social censure.

Following the slideshow, there will be an interpretive tour of the gardens of The Rocks Estate.
